The project includes variations to allow: 1) portions of the new house to exceed the 27-foot height limit, 2) reduced second story side yard setbacks on both sides, 3) encroachments into the right-side daylight plane, and 4) the new house to have three stories; and design review for a new three-story house that is 4,016 square feet in size. Project Planner: Dahl

Public Comment

Resident Joyce Ng expressed concerns regarding the height variance and requested that story poles be installed to better understand view impacts.

Resident Richard Geno expressed support for the ability of the owner to build a house, but requested story poles to understand the height and additional landscape screening along the side property line.
