

CONSULTANTS - HISTORIC RESOURCES

PURPOSE

For resource identification and project review under local, state, and federal rules, policies, and plans, the City relies on the work of qualified consultants who are contracted by private applicants and owners.

Property owners, community groups, and private property development applicants may also seek the services of qualified professionals in the areas of architecture, history, architectural history, historic architects, engineering, archaeology, oral history, historic preservation, documentary research, field work, and other professional services relating to historic resource identification, review, preservation, and treatment.

USE OF THE CONSULTANT LIST

This list may assist with finding qualified consultants. There may be qualified historic resource consultants who are not listed here, and the list should not be seen as all-inclusive. Applicants are free to contract for services with any qualified consultant.

You are encouraged to check with the consultants for their areas of specialization before contracting for services. The City does not recommend or endorse any listed consultants.

Contact information is subject to change.

NOTE TO CONSULTANTS - To update your contact information or to be added or removed from the list, please contact the Planning Division. Consultants should have a good understanding of Santa Clara County history and Los Altos architectural heritage and resource types and be familiar with the City's Historic Resources Inventory, Historic Preservation Ordinance, and General Plan policies for Historic Preservation.
